

Sunday morning at Our Savior's in the narthex I witnessed stewardship at its best.

A young member of the congregation, Cate, asked if she could sell some of her homemade cookies. She came with her finest and best. At the end of the morning, she had sold her cookies and received over $200 in sales. The proceeds were then given as her offering to support the ministry of Our Savior's.

She took her raw material of baking supplies and turned it into something edible, something beautiful and an offering of her time and talents. It was a God honoring moment, that's stewardship at its best.

Well done, good and faithful servant.
